British Empire Arabian Night

The British Empire Special reached town on Friday last and in the evening, assisted by the lantern views which of late have become so popular, a programme of exceeding merit was put on. The all British company including the following character artists:

John Bull, T. Gill; the Secretary of the King of England, H. E. Gill; the Postmaster General of Canada, G. A. Orr; the Pnn Jabs of India, G. M. Campbell; the Zulu Chief from South Africa, J. M. Moffatt; the Minister of the Interior from Australia, G. Park; the Codfish King from Newfoundland, A. S. Roberts; the Sino Feiner from Ireland, H. J. Meyer; the Duke of Argyle from Scotland, W. E. Williamson; the Welsh Rarobit from Wales, J. Jones. Attached to the party was the leader of the Coldstream Guards Band, B. Hummel, who had all the best talent from this famous band with him, including the Rhodes boys, F. Caldwell and others, and oh, boy, what music they did play.

To mention the different numbers on the programme individually would be to repeat all the superlative adjectives an ordinary vocabulary could boast. Every item showed careful preparation. The costumes were magnificent and indicated labor and expense had been lost sight of entirely. The unanimous decision of the large audience was that the show was the best ever put on in Champion, without barring even professionals. The music furnished by the band was particularly appreciated, and has led to many impressions of regret that the band is not a permanent organization. The attendances was limited by the capacity of the hall, in fact the collection of $37.50 was the only small item connected with the evening. Everyone will welcome a return engagement of "British Empire Night" As advertised John Bull was chairman, and his address follows:

Citizens of Champion,—As I had the honour of being the representative of England last week, and was introduced to most of you then, I now have the honour of introducing the representatives of the British Empire from all parts of the world to this fair City of Champion—rightly called "The Pride of the West." Being a visitor here all of last week, I cannot help but admire your beautiful, paved streets and boulevards, your public buildings—town hall, fire hall, schools, etc., and you ought to be proud of your beautiful park, laid out with its splendid lawns, flower beds and shady trees; your splendid cathedral of Gothic and Roman architecture, far better than the cathedrals shown on the screen last week; your splendid water system with Bill Porter and Carl Schneider on the water wagon, second to none in the Great West. However, I must not take up too much of your time. We expected to have His Majesty, King George, with us tonight, but owing to having so many engagements he had to send as his substitute the Rt.-Honourable Austen Chamberlain, his private secretary, whom I will introduce to you. And now comes the most important part of the programme. The collection is entirely for the benefit of the church. The church and the pastor are like all other things human, they cannot live by talk alone—

So do your best to make it good, And help to buy the coal and wood To keep that old church warm When ever you go there. And help to keep those charming bells— Their sound goes everywhere To ask you all to come To these—your houses of prayer. The frying pans will now go round, So do your best to make them sound!

I am sure you ought to be proud of your City Fathers, who manage your city affairs: C. McLean, the Mayor—the lumber king; Barney Hummel, who makes the axil ring; and Jack Beaudry, who, when it comes to Common Sense—the sure is there—and now I come to think, they all belong to the cutting risk, and you should hear Old Barney shout, you'd wonder what 'twas all about—Omitted by error from chairman's speech above.

The Champion U. F. A. Local ordered a car of eighteen hundred posts to be delivered the latter part of May from the Beaver Lumber Co. They are securing 18-18 7 ft. posts cut from green timber at $15.75 per hundred off car. The secretary is now taking orders for the second car so if any of the members wish any posts they can get them by giving their order at once.

NOTES AND COMMENT

Everything would point to the fact that this will be a season of at least normal rainfall, and consequently a fairly good crop season if statistical averages go for anything. A precipitation record issued by the London Guarantee and Accident Company would impress this upon anyone who will take the trouble to analyze it.

Precipitation Record

Year	Precipitation
1903	28.05
1904	14.80
1905	11.40
1906	13.58
1907	12.45
1908	15.50
1909	15.77
1910	11.09
1911	7.50
1912	21.32
1913	13.21
1914	11.17
1915	10.32
1916	17.27
1917	24.37
1918	11.90
1919	7.62
1920	12.30
1921	14.05

The winter of 1901-2 was very similar to 1920-21. It was followed by heavy precipitation during the growing season.

10-year average.....15.506

Month	Precipitation
January	0.84
February	1.21
March	0.80
April	4.27
May	10.32
June	0.40
July	2.50
August	0.20
September	0.05
October	0.00
November	0.00
December	0.00
Total	14.16

The conclusion reached by consideration of the precipitation record is naturally that a period of increased moisture will follow an extended period of light rainfall, because it has always happened so before and is consequently to be expected to happen again.

While there is no inclination to urge extensive sowing on land inadequately prepared in anticipation of a wet season, there is every reason to take an optimistic view of the situation and to act accordingly to a reasonable extent.

To repeat—there is every reason to expect a return to at least normal rainfall in 1921, and a normal rainfall means a good growing season.

Agriculture Instruction

An insight into the progress that is being made in agriculture instruction both for adults and Juniors, is to be gathered from the report on the Agriculture Instruction Act for 1919-1920, recently submitted to the Dominion Parliament. Under this Act $1,100,000 is now devoted annually between the nine provinces of Canada with a view, as the report says, of aiding and advancing the farming industry of Canada. That the objects sought are being attained is shown by the review of the situation regarding agricultural instruction as it now exists in this country. Schools have been established, colleges extended and brought nearer to the farmer, research has been greatly encouraged, the agricultural representative system has been aided and fostered, home life improved, school fairs have been brought into being, and knowledge in every branch of agriculture are and domestic science has been made more readily available. How the funds forthcoming under the Act are applied as illustrated by the fact that of an allotment $256,413, was devoted in 1919-1920 to the Agricultural Representative system, and $944,970 to instruction and demonstration. Boys and Girls clubs were extensively aided and women's Institutes, housemaker's clubs and similar organizations, had their funds augmented in such a manner as led remarkably to their growth and increased spread of their usefulness. How important a figure in the direct advancement of agricultural instruction the Act is, will perhaps be best appreciated by the fact that in the six years of its existence $1,900,143 has been allocated to colleges and schools of agriculture, exclusive of veterinary colleges, to which a special grant of $80,000 is made annually. The problem facing those responsible for educational policy, says the report, is to provide adequate educational opportunities for those destined for country life, and that in large measure is the purpose for which the funds granted by the Act are being used.

Fireguard Reveals
In Welcomes
To Newlyweds

Your correspondent has been so busy in the activities of the "Charivari Club" that he has neglected to report lately, but as some of these real live "doings" are past, will ask for space for a few lines.

The first of the newlyweds were Mr. and Mrs. Sletto, who arrived from over the border a short time ago and to tune of a wedding march played on the piano, eight bells, pronounced with their friends to Mr. O. Sletto's house, that was unoccupied, and spent a gay evening in dancing, also renewing old and making new acquaintances. Mr. Chamberlain, on behalf of these present, welcomed Mr. Sletto and his lovely bride and presented them with some appropriate gifts, not least among them being a small article that might be of use to a small person. Mr. and Mrs. Sletto responded with many thanks.

Hardly had we gained our equilibrium from this frolic till the neighborhood was again welcoming a fair lady from Miss, who arrived and became the bride of Mr. Ray Warren. More music, more laughter and more gaiety resounded and Mr. Warren was so overwhelmed and proud of the subject of the congratulations that he rose till his head touched the ceiling and poured many thanks for the address of welcome and the presentations. Probably his eloquence was due to one of the presents bearing a card on which was written "These will be appreciated when needed."

And, after a short breathing spell, along came Mr. Thomas Geddes with a Bonnie Lassie, a true Auld Scotland. After the citizens of Champion had showered them with rice and confetti, he and his bride were escorted to a car and were driven through the boulevards and streets of the town to the tune of several strings of "In came" attached to the rear of the auto. So much for Champion. But the following Monday evening the citizens of Fireguard arrived at the ranch house and with an outburst of music, supplied them with rice and rolling coulters, were invited in and after much persuasion Tom and his bride accompanied them to the school where they were given a hearty welcome, and a very enjoyable evening, was spent in dancing and games. After lunch Mr. and Mrs. Geddes were presented with some useful articles one of which reminded us of the old saying, "The hand that rocks the cradle, rules the world." Mr. Geddes responded in a very fitting manner. After many congratulations and good wishes the crowd wended their way homeward.

Last but not least of the newlyweds who should return from Scotland but A. S. McDonald with another charming lassie from the land of the Heather, on Friday last. It being very cold and stormy when they arrived they escaped part of the programme that the citizens of Champion had prepared for them. On Saturday they stepped into a well prepared plan while being entertained at Mr. and Mrs. Burnett's. The crowd gathered at the school at 8.30, thence to Mr. Burnett's home where a real old fashioned "Charivari" was carried out and were then invited in by the hostess and introduced to the bride and groom. Amid cheering and shouting of horns they proceeded to the school where a pleasant evening was spent in dancing, singing etc. One feature of the evening was a "Highland Reel" in which the old timers and new arrivals displayed their abilities at the Highland Fling. After lunch was served Mr. and Mrs. McDonald were the recipients of many useful articles among which were a couple of small objects with a card attached which read "To amuse the twins." Mr. McDonald responded with a few well chosen remarks and the singing of Auld Lang Syne and He's a Jolly Good Fellow, brought the evening to a close. This matrimonial fever seems to be very contagious and seems to be getting on the nerves of the few remaining bachelors.

Mrs. Crawford of Calgary is spending the week with her son E. F. Crawford.

Alex Frain who has spent the winter in Ont. has returned to our neighborhood.

G. E. Voisey spent several days in Calgary last week on business.

We are sorry to report the departure of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Poller from our district.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Ditto spent Easter Sunday at the home of John Cook.

J. N. McDonald spent the week end in Champion.

Mr. and Mrs. Woddard moved to our neighborhood on Monday last.

There are penalties for being married even when the event is ten years old. As Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Campbell were preparing for bed on Monday evening they were saluted with a clarivari orchestra equal to anything which ever entered Milt Moffatt's head even when dressed up as a sulu chief. Then some twenty of their friends took possession of their dwelling and raised more or less Cain until the early hours. As a compensation they left some very pleasant tokens of their esteem in the shape of aluminum ware. The event came as a complete surprise to Mr. and Mrs. Campbell, who will have a lasting impression of having been lucky of having been married ten years.

A Lazy Story

(Contributed.)

At a recent dinner a number of people were telling of the laziest persons they had met or heard of. Some interesting specimens of the genus homo lazibus were discussed; but the final story, we think, takes the prize. The story preceding it was as follows:

"The laziest man I ever knew," said one young fellow, "was Bill Smythe. He was so lazy that when he started into a building he would get within the revolving door and wait for someone to come along and revolve it."

"That man was as lazy as a bee," compared to Hank Perkins, down in Arkansas," said another young man.

"Hank was given up to be the laziest man in the United States. He was so lazy that he wouldn't get out of the sun when it was hot, or out of the rain when it was wet. One day Hank was sitting on the porch with his wife. As it happened, his back was to the road. A prominent farmer had just died, and the funeral procession passed Hank's house. The deceased was a man of considerable influence, and the procession was a long one. After it had passed, the wife said, 'That was a mighty fine procession Hank.' 'Yes, I guess it must 'a' been,' said Hank. 'I would 'a' liked to 'a' seen it, but I was settin' wrong.'

The Swing of the Pendulum

The enormous demand for products and goods of all kinds during the war, and the consequent rapid rise in prices not only for such products and goods but for the materials and labor entering into their production, have created problems in finance and economics which taxed the best brains in all countries. Phenomenal increases in prices of all commodities inevitably forced increased wages paid to workers in order that they might be able to maintain themselves and their families. And increased wages could have no other effect than to give still another boost to the costs of production, and, as a natural result, another advance in prices. Another call for an increase in wages followed, and so the war was a vicious circle. With the conclusion of the war came a sudden cessation in demand for those articles which were required in enormous quantities during the struggle. Coupled with this cessation in demand, was the return of millions of men from the armies back to civilian life and the necessity of absorbing them once again into the industrial and productive work of the country. Under the conditions it did not take long to make good the shortage of goods in practically all lines which had been created during the war while the energies of all people were devoted to the making of war materials and equipment.

Now the world of finance and business and labor faces the problems of decreased demand and falling prices. Difficult as were the problems created by unprecedented demand, shortage of materials and labor, and steadily rising prices, they were simple compared to the difficulties now confronting everybody because of decreased demand, and consequent unemployment, resulting in a lessened buying power by the public and an inevitable fall in prices of commodities. Yet this new and much more difficult problem must be faced and solved, and all classes must contribute their fair share to the solution.

The chief reason difficulty seems to lie in the fact that the workingman remains insistently that the high scale of wages reached during the war period of inflation shall be maintained. Those high wages were the outcome of unusual conditions, and any intelligent and observant person must realize that with the passing of those exceptional conditions, wages, like everything else, must return to a normal level.

In order to stimulate buying on the part of people generally, there must be a decrease in prices. If there is not such a drop in prices, and, as a consequence, increased buying, there must inevitably be a curtailment in production. A dropping off in industrial production means unemployment for the workers, not merely at prevailing high wages but at any wages at all. Any increase in the number of the unemployed means a further lowering of the buying power of the people, and a still further increase in unemployment, or a substantial reduction in the hours of employment—factors running half-time instead of full time. In other words, the world is in danger of again travelling in an economic circle, even more vicious and containing greater possibilities of disaster than the one travelled during the war years.

The unfortunate fact is that, to an appalling extent, people today are being guided in their actions by untutored theories instead of the actual experience of the past. Workers everywhere seem to be demanding the settlement of present problems in economics on a basis which totally disregards fundamental principles which underlie all business and finance. During the war the pendulum swung to the extreme of high wages, and everybody had to swing with it, until wages went to the other extreme before an equilibrium is reached, and once again everybody is affected. Not by the efforts of any one class alone, but only through the combined efforts and co-operation of all can a normal level be reached in the matter of wages.

One of the fallacies, which, however, finds ready acceptance in some quarters, is that any given industry can fix its own prices, of labor, of scale of wages, etc., without having regard to the other lines of industry. For example, that railway executives and railway employees can get together and decide upon hours of labor and scale of wages, and by setting these forth in an agreement ratified and signed by both parties, settle the problem so far as they are concerned. But not so. If as the result of the subsidies agreed upon an undue burden is placed on other lines of commercial activity and the public as a whole, then there will be such a falling off in business that the railway companies will be sufferers and the necessity be enforced upon them of laying off countless numbers of their employees. It would be merely a modern application of the old fallacy of killing the goose that laid the golden egg.

And what would be true in the case cited, would prove equally true in relation to any other industry. There are other theories that dwell too much on theories, but in fact actualities, fundamental principles, and the concrete facts of the situation.

Machine Gun Shooting 1,500 Bullets a Minute Is Devised By Them.

Former Minister of War Lefevre, speaking in the French Chamber of Deputies, said that since he declared in a previous debate that Germany was making a new machine gun capable of shooting 1,500 bullets a minute, its existence had been proven. The gun had been found in Hammelburg, he declared, along with a new type of sixteen caliber, proving that the Germans were making new armaments to replace that destroyed under allied control. He said that material had been discovered in cellars of the Spanish arsenal sufficient to make 6,000 27th guns.

Getting Meals in Advance

BY LORETO C. LYNCH
An Acknowledged Expert in All Matters Pertaining to Household Management.

There comes a time in the life of every housewife when she must either be absent from the family board or when she returns home to take care of the household. How much easier for every one concerned if she has a few emergency menus on hand.

One of these consists of: Boiled fish, green peas, baked macaroni with cheese, cold soup or cabbage sauté and apple sauce. The macaroni may be boiled the day before, rinsed with cold water and set aside in the refrigerator. The apple sauce may also be prepared. The cabbage may be shredded and tied up in a damp cloth.

On the morning of the day you expect to be away, make up the white sauce and arrange it and the macaroni in the greased baking dish. Sprinkle the cheese over the top. And replace it in the ice box. Finish making the cabbage salad. Open the peas, drain the water from them and rinse under the running water. Allow them to lay, spread out upon a shallow china plate as long as possible. Place them in a baking dish or plunk pot and add a very little water. Add a bit of butter and salt and pepper. Some add a teaspoonful of sugar. Set aside.

Prepare the fish. Split it open and place it skin-side down on a greased plate. Pour oil over the top and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Replace it in the ice chest close to the ice. Cover with another plate. Set your table before leaving home and cover it with some device to prevent dust getting upon it.

A steak or chops might be substituted for fish. Potatoes creamed and baked with cheese might replace the macaroni dish. Baked apples could be used.

A one-piece meal is sometimes desirable. It is baking dish put a slice of sugar-cured ham. Over this pour sufficient milk to well cover. Then pour a layer of potatoes cut into one-fourth inch slices.

Moisten the potatoes with milk and spread a bit of fat trimmed from some of the ham over it. Sprinkle with paprika or white pepper. Cook slowly in a moderate oven. When the potatoes are brown and tender, turn out the fish. This may be replaced with meat and butter makes a very delicious meal.

From little things come the home, the housewife often returns with a new viewpoint and in general she is much happier for the change. But the good of all this is to a great extent if she has to rush frantically about wondering what to get ready for the family in a hurry.

Irrigation in B.C.

Large Area Is Included in New Project Near Creston.

An area of two thousand three hundred and fifty acres is included in a new irrigation project near Creston, British Columbia, according to a report recently made public. The project can be used for growing water for irrigation and domestic purposes, as well as for developing two hundred and forty hp. to operate a light and power plant for the town of Creston. The cost of this scheme complete is estimated at a quarter of a million dollars, or, it developed for irrigation only, the cost would be about $175,000.

Of the two thousand three hundred and fifty acres in the irrigation area, about one thousand are now set out to orchard and berries, and the remainder is either cleared land or land in a logged off state awaiting development. The water will be obtained from the Arrow Creek. Surveys are also being made of projects to provide water for irrigation in other districts near Creston, namely in Canyon City and Wyndol districts. The latter is a fine strawberry area.

Value of This Production Increased to a New Maximum.

During the past year, building activity was reduced to a minimum, and the total value of the production of cement, clay and quarry products which reached a maximum of $80,000,750 in 1913 and fell to $17,467,185 in 1916, increasing to $27,421,510 in 1919. In 1920 the value of this production had increased to a new maximum of $38,184,848. While higher prices have played an important part in this increase of 39 per cent. in value the actual quantities of cement, brick, lime and stone produced has been considerably increased in 1920 over the 1919 production.

A Protest Long Delayed

Isn't it about time that the stationers manage to lay in some lead pencils which are worth buying? Ever since the war began we have been putting up with substitutes for burned matches and paying from five to eight cents each for them too. Now our patience is becoming exhausted, and we are looking for a pencil with thick, soft lead and one which can be sharpened without the lead breaking. We bought two pencils during the last 48 hours, and paid six cents for one and seven for the other, and neither of them was worth a cent. We haven't had a good pencil in three years—York, Pa., Gazette.

PAIN IN THE LOINS

Experiments in Relling of Flax

Experiments in the retelling of flax in Canada are progressing. An Ontario grower satisfied himself that flax sown over the first half of snow and allowed to stand until the snow melted developed a finer bleach than the Irish red-retted flax, and that the textile strength was in no way diminished. The experiments by the government division have, however, had contrary results, and in each case the textile strength has been greatly diminished.

SPRING WEATHER HARD ON BABY

The Canadian spring weather—one day mild and bright, the next day blustery—is extremely hard on the baby. Conditions are such that the parents cannot take the little one out for the fresh air so much to be desired. The baby is in the house, which is so often over-heated and badly ventilated. If catches cold, diarrhea, stomach and bowels become disordered and the mother soon has a very nervous breakdown. To look after this occasional dose of Baby's Own Tablets should be given. They regulate the stomach and bowels, prevent or banishing colds, simple colds, or any other of the minor ailments of childhood. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers for 25c per bottle. Did you ever go to the boys' banquet? Not a cake and Sandwich feed but a real honest-to-goodness soup to nuts dinner at night, and sit down with 200 healthy, happy boys with appetites like wolves' and digestions like ostriches? It is not often that an opportunity like this comes to grown-ups but every year The Herald has its newsboys' banquet at which not only the Calgary newsboys are present but all the other newsboys who represent the Herald at its out-of-town points. On March 18th in the Palliser ballroom the last and most successful banquet of Herald newsboys was held. Mr. J. H. Woods, managing director of the Herald Publishing Company, and President of The Alberta and Eastern B. C. Division, Canadian Press Association gave the boys a heart to heart talk just like one boy to another. He was cheered to the echo. The balance of the evening was devoted to amusements and there was plenty of good music supplied by a Calgary orchestra. The entire expense of the banquet together with the traveling and hotel expenses of all the out-of-town boys taken care of by the Herald Publishing Company Limited.

Alberta Agriculture Schools

By her her school of agriculture policy Alberta has taken the lead, if not positively in agricultural education at least in definite and specific instruction for the young in the requisites of farming as a vocation. No province has neglected the subject, but none has gone more directly to its root, and by its creation of six schools of agriculture the province has attracted enviable attention to itself. By means of these schools nearly a thousand young people have been equipped for their life work. When it is stated that, from funds supplied under the Dominion Agricultural Instruction Act alone, a no smaller sum than $300,000 has been employed in the last half dozen years in Canada in the building, equipping and maintenance of such schools, some idea of the benefits derived from the grants under the Act can be attained. Official reports show that in 1919-20, of the $265,955 which is Alberta's share of $1,100,000 granted annually by the Dominion for division between the provinces, $28,000 was devoted to the Alberta schools of agriculture. In the same years, $6,000 was allotted to instruction in woman's work, and $2,500 to the poultry and egg-marketing service. In the same year there was allotted $10,000 to the agricultural representative system. School fairs, based chiefly on school garden work, and school clubs for the rearing of poultry, calves, colts and pigs, are conducted under the direction of teachers from the schools of agriculture with the assistance of the agricultural representatives, and are increasing in number and importance every year. In 1919-20, for instance, 40 school fairs, representing 110 schools and 5,500 pupils, were held, with approximately 25,000 exhibits.
